Can we make it so that when you hover over a person's picture, this Profile appears and they can see the info, and if they click in the box, it will stay on the screen so they can take actions??

I also have an "info" icon that we can use IN "profile mode" if we want to, that would open this popup. The idea is that it's basic now, but when we have paid features there will be an a lot of "enhanced" info about this particular Twitter user.

The font needs to be the same as their main font they selected in design settings... the orange color represents "links" but should be their text color and link colors and pane background colors

For now, open favorites and this person's followers/following list in a new window, to their Twitter pages

Divider color is same as their setting

This should only appear if DM to this person is "allowed" because they are a mutual friend (is that a problem???) The colors should be whatever their pane bubble & text colors are set to.

For follow/unfollow & block/unblock, put the applicable word in... for example, you follow me, so it would say "Unfollow" for the action.

I have to make & send icons at right size for all sets

Add this after we add the Groups feature
